HOW TO READ THE PLAN

1 THE PLAN IS A WORD SEARCH

Where you find a name is where that person was. An L-shaped room is one room: it is shaded gray and its number shows twice.

gray: one room, 3

2 ACROSS = STANDING

A name on a horizontal line means standing. It may read either way.

3 UP OR DOWN = SITTING

A name on a vertical line means sitting, read down or up.

down or up: both are EDNA

4 DIAGONAL = CROUCHING

A name on a diagonal line means crouching, hiding low. Names on the Ground Floor are never diagonal: diagonals start on the Upper Floor.

any of the 4 diagonals

5 WINDOWS AND FIREPLACES

Windows are drawn in the outside wall. A fireplace sits beside the room name.

6 SHARING A WALL

Rooms share a wall when they touch along a wall, never at just a corner.

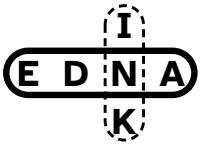

share a wall

Every statement is true. Postures are for suspects only: the victim's name says nothing about how the victim was found.

CROSSINGS, THE ATTIC AND THE CODE

7 WORDS THAT CROSS

Two words cross when they share a letter square. Sharing any letter counts, even the first or last one. Words that only sit side by side do not cross.

cross: yes

last letter: yes

touching: no

8 THE ATTIC: TWO PLANS

Each Attic case has two plans of the same rooms, drawn at two times: Plan A and Plan B. People and the weapon may change rooms between them; the room objects and the clue words do not. Every statement says which plan it means.

9 LINKED STATEMENTS (ATTIC ONLY)

"If A, B": if A is true, B must be true too. If A is not true for a suspect, this statement does not rule that suspect out. Example: "If the killer was sitting, the room has a fireplace." Edna is sitting in a room with no fireplace: ruled out. Lena is standing: still possible.

"Either A or B, but not both": exactly one of the two is true for the killer. Example: "Either the name crosses ASH, or the room has a window, but not both." Edna crosses ASH and her room has a window: both true, ruled out. Lena does neither: both false, ruled out.

A linked statement never solves a case alone: use it with the others.

10 YOUR VERDICT CODE

Add up the letters of the killer's name (A=1, B=2, C=3...), then add 10 times the number of the killer's room (on Plan B in the Attic). Look up your code on page 12: it tells you if the case is closed, or which statement to check again.

Every statement is true. Each one is needed, and each one rules out at least one person.

THE ATTIC

Rain drummed on the roof of Elmwood Hall on November 11, 1930. At 7:51 PM, the night nurse went around the attic and drew Plan A.
